THE CRUCIFIXION AND THE JEWS

A recent cable from Paris, printed in the daily press, brings the news that a document believed to be the original decree under which Jesus was tried and crucified, is said to have been discovered. This document was brought to light by the French Government Archaeological Mission in Southern Tunis. The decree is addressed "to all colonial governors of the Roman Empire in Palestine and Near and Further Arabia." It reads in part: "Prophets and religious revolutionists have arisen among the people. These prophets are not to be interfered with under Roman law except when their teachings are of such a nature as to cause disturbances among the people. In such cases they are to be effectively suppressed. It is particularly desirable that these prophets be not allowed to interfere with collection of taxes or any other political affairs." The edict is signed by Augustus Caesar. It states that Jesus was executed under this order as a political disturber.

This document is a real "find" because it contradicts the popular conception, so universally held by the masses of unenlightened Christians, that the Jews are guilty of crucifying Jesus. It saddles the blame on the Roman Governor Pontius Pilate, where it justly belongs. The "crime" that Jesus was guilty of in the eyes of the Roman law was that he called himself, or was called, "King of the Jews." This was the same as admitting that Judaea, which was a subject of Rome, had proclaimed a revolution, set up a King and declared their independence.

The legend that the Jews crucified Jesus has been a curse to the Jews. For 1 900 years they have been crucified on every cross in Christendom, for a crime that the Christian world holds them guilty of, and of which in truth they are innocent.

Let the curtain of obscurity again be raised on this controversy and let us see what light the Jewish sources and historians have to throw, in confirming this newly discovered document.

According to the account of the crucifixion found in the first three Synoptic Gospels, Jesus was arrested and tried on Passover night (Thursday, April 6th-7th). This is impossible, because two scribes had to be present at every trial to record the proceedings (Sanhedrin 36b). Writing was forbidden on a festival (Sabbath 73). These conditions would have had to be violated and the crucifixion would not have corresponded to the day of the week on which it occurred. Furthermore, the Sanhedrin had no jurisdiction of the day to hold court on a festival or a Sabbath (Mishna, San. IV, 1; Tal. Sanhedrin 32b, 34a; Maimonides, Sanhedrin 3: 111).

According to the rules of Jewish jurisprudence a criminal case could not be started the day before a holiday or the day before the Sabbath (Tal. Rosh Hashonah 25a, Maimonides Sanhedrin 12:3); yet according to the Gospel of John, which varies from the Synoptic Gospels, Jesus was crucified symbolic of the Passover lamb, which according to Jewish tradition was sacrificed on the day preceding Passover. This involves a New Testament contradiction because according to the Synoptic Gospels and Christian theology Jesus celebrated the Seder meal with his disciples. If the three Synoptic Gospels and Christian traditions are to be followed, the crucifixion could not have taken place before the day following the Seder meal. It is evident, however, in either case that the Gospels themselves present very conflicting testimony on this very vital point.

Furthermore crucifixion was not a Jewish mode of executing criminals and hence the Pharisees could not have decreed crucifixion. This was the known Roman method of execution for slaves, thieves and low-born rebels. If it is true, as the New Testament endeavours to prove, that Pilate was anxious to save Jesus, saying "I find no fault with him" (Luke 23:3), why then does Pilate not at least spare Jesus from the disgrace of crucifixion, which was considered the most degrading form of execution. The Jews, who only a few days earlier had received Jesus near the gate of Jerusalem with palm branches and Hosannas could not, a few days later, call for the crucifixion of this popular idol. It is not natural nor possible. The Jews seemed to have remained his faithful friends and followers to the end, for we read (Luke 23:27), that when Jesus was led to Golgotha "there followed him a great company of people and women, which also bewailed and lamented." It was not these Jews who cried "Crucify him! Crucify him!" The fact that the two thieves were crucified at the same time with Jesus, proves too that the Roman Court and not the Sanhedrin was meting out justice. If the Sanhedrin had been functioning, the thieves would not have been executed. The Jewish law provided only a fine, equal to double the amount of the theft for thieves. But the Romans crucified thieves. This shows beyond any doubt that the Jewish laws were not in operation at that time.

Historical evidence also proves conclusively that under the rule of Pontius Pilate (26 C.E. to 36 C.E., and for a long time prior to his being governor, the Jews had been stripped of the legal power and modus operandi to try and render decisions in criminal cases. The Sanhedrin, convened by the High Priest Caiaphas, before which Jesus was tried, was not in existence at the time of Jesus. It had been abolished by Herod in 40 B.C.E. (see Jewish Encyclopaedia, Vol. VI. Herod; Jewish History, Graetz, Vol. II, Chap. IV and Talmud Baba Bathra, 3a). It was not until 42 C.E., eighty-two years later, that the Sanhedrin was re-organized by Agrippa I. The authors of the Gospels were well aware of this fact. Jesus, like others of his kind, was tried before Pontius Pilate and a Roman tribunal and sentenced to crucifixion because the Roman Governor regarded Jesus' teachings "of such a nature as to cause disturbances among the people." The fact, too, that Jesus was everywhere being hailed as the "Messiah" and "King of the Jews," which charge he acknowledged in the words when he addressed to Pilate, "Ye have said it," caused the Romans to regard Jesus as an extremely dangerous political radical leader who was arousing the people to rebellion. It is unquestionably true, that the Pharisees, who were the Jewish leaders of the time, and whose sayings Jesus embodied in his sermons, did not countenance Jesus as the Messiah, nor did they look with favour upon his anti-authoritative and mystical teachings. Consequently they probably did nothing to save Jesus from his fate. Nevertheless it is unhistoric to hold them responsible for his crucifixion.

An unbiassed study of the trial of Jesus reveals the facts that there was nothing Jewish about the proceedings and that it was not in accordance with the laws and customs of the Sanhedrin. We mention but a few instances.

In the New Testament we are told that the High Priest prevailed upon Judas Iscariot to betray his Master, and also sought witnesses against Jesus, and that in many other ways he had shown himself hostile to the prisoner from the beginning. Nevertheless he was permitted not only to sit in judgment, but even to preside as Chief Judge over his trial. (Matthew 26:59). This is absolutely contrary to the rules of Jewish jurisprudence. No Jewish court would have permitted such conduct on the part of the presiding judge, because according to Jewish law, the judges must be impartial and have absolutely no connection or relation with the cases before them.

The trial of Jesus, according to the Gospels, took place in the house of Caiaphas. This again was contrary to the rules of the Sanhedrin, because in criminal trials, all cases had to be brought in the "Lishkas Hagozis" (The Hewn Chamber of the Temple). (Tal. Sanhedrin 86b 88b, Aboda Zora 8b; Maimonides, San. 4:11).

The three Synoptic Gospels unite in their assertion that Jesus was tried by night. This, too, is in gross violation of the rules of

REVIEW JUNIOR SECTION

All contributions for the Junior Section must be sent to CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW, 319 Bay Street, Toronto. Any girl or boy is welcome to join our page and to contribute poems, essays, stories, riddles, etc., etc. Fill out this little card and mail it at once.

REVIEW JUNIOR SECTION:
I would like to join the Cousin Family of The Canadian Jewish Review.

My name is . . . . . .

I live at . . . . . .

I am . . . . . years of age.

Dear Cousins:

What do you think of the Purim Stories? Don't you agree with me that they are splendid? I'm sure we all join in congratulating Fannie Fleming, the prize-winner. Will you let us have your address, Fannie, in order that we may send you your prize? "J.S." and "Bepsi" who really ought to let us have their names because this is a special occasion, are both in the Honour Circle. Perhaps next time they will win the prizes.

Which makes me think of next time . . . what shall we have for our competition subject? Suppose you all put on your "thinkety-think" caps, and meditate for seven minutes by the clock, for seven minutes by the clock are much longer than seven minutes in one's imagination, as you know if you practise music with the clock on the piano. That's the way a girl I know practises, and I can usually tell by the sound of her playing, whether she finds the clock too fast or too slow. . . . To get back to our seven minutes. . . . Then when you've thought of something, will you write it out and breathe a good luck wish into the envelope with it, and mail it to me? I'm sure I'll enjoy both the idea and the good luck wish.

And that is all for now. You see I must run my nonsense short in order that all our Purim stories may be printed together. Remember what we said about introducing new cousins into our family? Do it now!

Cousin David.

PRIZE STORY

THE STORY OF PURIM

By FANNIE FLEMING.

Mordecai bowed and broken, swayed swayed below the tower window of the royal castle of Shushan. His eyes dilated and his hands restlessly clutching his throat. He wondered, oh, wondered, what the result of it all would be for he knew that Hadassah would surely die if she proclaimed herself a Jewess. Indeed it seemed impossible that King Ahasuerus would pardon her and for her sake promise life to her kindred. The fountains in the luxurious royal garden gushed into the air seeming to make a bow of silver against the placid blue sky, the rare and beautiful flowers cast their fragrance about the garden. Mordecai heard not saw not, a calm peace had stolen upon his bereft heart, he was a victim of Memories of Not so-long Ago.

Again he saw himself sitting in front of his house just before the blow had fallen an old man and a religious man whom life had not gently dealt with watching a group of girls as they danced as the maidens had frolicked, a youth bearing the king's colours had aroused Mordecai from his reverie, and had curtly told him that in two hours Hadassah was to be ready to depart for the palace as King Ahasuerus had divorced his wife Vashti, and now sought amongst the maidens of Persia for her successor. The youth then told Mordecai, that henceforth he had no child - she was of the king's household. Then he had gone, leaving Mordecai in a depressing silence. A minute had gone by and Mordecai was again himself. He had called Hadassah and bade her dress herself in her festive robes, and she unquestioning had gone as he had bidden her, but soon had appeared again, looking like a queen in her simple robes of pale green. These had been Mordecai's parting commands. "Thou shalt not declare thyself a Jewess. Furthermore thou shalt be called Esther. My child, wilt thou obey me?" he had asked, and Esther had held her head high and answered simply, "I have always obeyed thee and always will - even if I am crowned Queen of Persia. Farewell." And she was gone.

Eventful weeks had passed: first, and perhaps most important, King Ahasuerus had found in Esther's simplicity and beauty his queen and Esther now was Queen of Persia. Then suddenly, like a summer storm, a terrible blow had fallen upon the Jewish race. Haman, favourite of the king, had obtained permission to slaughter Mordecai and his people and was even now erecting gallows. Meanwhile, what about Queen Esther? In the Golden Palace she pined for her terror-stricken race. On the night that Mordecai swayed below her window lost in the agony of apprehension she was giving a banquet and among those present were King Ahasueras, Haman, and the chief among the nobles. Esther pleaded with the King, asking that he spare the lives of her people. The last time that she had seen Mordecai, she had said to him: I will send thee a signal, that thou mayest know whether we of Israel live or die. If I quench the light of the lamp in my casement, thou mayst know that the lives of our people will, alas! be quenched! If the king is gracious and pardons us I shall free a white dove which I found wounded and have kept ever since. May it be that the God of our fathers spare us!" Mordecai waited: the pale moon rose, and silvered the fountains. Mordecai saw, but heeded not. He saw his people, men, innocent women, and harmless children, delivered to the sword, the prey of Haman's hatred. And Hadassah, His Hadassah, would be amongst those slain: even now they might be leading her to an ignoble death. Suddenly the light in the casement window was darkened. A woman was leaning out of the window. He saw her press a white dove to her lips, kissing it e'er she set it free. In the Queen's pavilion stern guards led Haman to his death, for the King had decreed that he should die. Beneath the silvered shrubs, and fountains, Mordecai knelt in grateful prayer before the God of his fathers. While he prayed a white dove circled about his head—a symbol of love and duty undying.

"PURIM"

By J.S.

The twentieth of this month is Purim, the story of Purim is the story of a Jewish girl who was proud of her people and religion. When King Ahasuerus was looking for a queen and chose Esther, she would not tell him of her descendance, for she was descended of King Saul. Instead she told him she did not know who she was, for she thought that the king would be ashamed to marry a woman who did not know who she was. She would have liked to let the chance of being queen pass, than break one of the principles of her from death, she agreed to tell the king that she was descended of Saul, so that she might find favour in the sight of the king and be able to make him recall the decree he had made on Haman's advice, for it says in the book of Esther, "To-morrow I will do as the king saith." By this she meant that she would tell the king what he was trying to find out—who she was.

If Esther had changed her religion merely to become queen, she would soon have been forgotten. But as it is she is remembered every year as one of the greatest heroines in Jewish history.

Dear Cousin David:

I am so glad that you accepted me in your section. Where is Cousin Judith? Is she on her vacation? I think the story of Esther is one of the most beautiful passages in the Bible. I shall look forward with a lot of interest to the Purim competition.

Yours sincerely,
Ruby Mentel.

Dear Ruby:

Here I are, and very much so, too! Instead of looking forward to reading Purim stories written by other cousins, why didn't you write one your own self? You must try to do something original for our next contest. Incidentally, Cousin Judith says that I am to run the next contest all by myself, and really you know, I'm not altogether sure that I can take care of a competition with all the new fangled up-to-date twentieth century frills and furbelows. So I'm asking you all to come to my assistance. What shall we take as our subject? And why? And when? And where? Answer by return mail! Write again Ruby, telling us quite a lot about yourself.

Cousin David.

Dear Cousin Judith:

I love the idea of that Purim contest, and am therefore sending a Purim Story. I think there is nothing the wide world o'er that we Jewish children, our parents and every other Jew should be prouder of than the origin of Purim. There is only one story perhaps which shows as clearly what we are made of, and that is the story of Tish'ah Be-ab. Think of a child, a young child, defying the mighty king Nebucadnezzar. Oh, Reuben was a child whom it would do us all good to remember. Don't you think so?

V.M.G. when I read the poem and "I saw the world through rose-coloured glasses," I thanked you heartily. Even though you exaggerated a little. Congratulations, Lillian Rose! My epistle is becoming long, so I must close it.

Best wishes,
Fannie Fleming.

Dear Fannie:

We enjoyed your Purim story so much, that Ye Maker of Limericks, who is looking over my shoulder, insists that I ask you to send us the story of Reuben, written by yourself. Will you? I think we are really getting to be quite a nice, large, happy family of cousins, now, don't you? Aren't you going to introduce some of your friends to us, Fannie? Come again soon.

Cousin Judith.

THOUGHT FOR TO-DAY

If any little words of ours can make one life the brighter,
If any little song of ours can make one heart the lighter,
God help us speak that little work, and take our bit of singing
And drop it in some lonely vale and set the echoes ringing.

Teacher: Johnny, your vocabulary is very poor.

Johnny (solemnly): Yes, ma'am, the doctor says he'll have to cut it out.

One day a teacher asked her pupil: "Can you give me the meaning of the suffix '-ous'?"

"Yes, ma'am," replied the boy.

"Well, give me two or three examples."

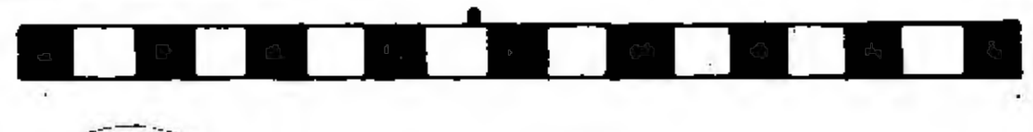
"Dangerous," said the pupil, "meaning full of danger; furious, full of fury; pinus, full of pie."

One of the boys, named David Levy, once did a good piece of work. His teacher, whose name was also Levy, thought he would crack a joke, so he said, "Well, all the Levys are the same."

The same morning David was called upon to recite. He did not know his lesson.

"You're stupid," said Mr. Levy.

"Well," said David, "all Levys are the same."



Your Curtains

EVERY HOUSEWIFE who takes pride in the appearance of her window draperies, yet despairs at the difficulty of stretching them to proper size and shape after washing, will be interested in the service rendered by our curtain department. When they come in, the curtains are first carefully measured. Then they are washed with pure soap, being handled throughout this process with utmost gentleness. While still wet, the curtains are placed in pairs on a new and ingenious drying frame which stretches them perfectly even and flat at their exact original size. This frame holds all four sides whether they are straight or ornamental, so that the edges are perfectly parallel and even the corners absolutely square. Curtains cleaned and finished in this establishment are returned shaped as perfectly as when new. We know that our work will please you. Telephone us and we will send for your curtains.

INTER-CITY HOCKEY

Ottawa Judeans defeated the Montreal Y.M.H.A. by the score of 3 to 1, March 2 at the Coliseum Arena, Montreal. The Ottawa sextette was playing a return match after a game at Parc Royal, Hull, February 17, when the teams tied 1 to 1. The game was witnessed by over 500 people. Billy Betcherman for the Judeans tallied on a pass from Mike Betcherman. Sam Greenberg, Judean goalie, kept the nets clear. For the losers, Matty Fink scored about the middle of the second period, dividing the honours with Harris and Kreigal. In the final period, Bill and Mike Betcherman accounted for a goal each, making the score 3 to 1. After the game, the visitors were entertained at the "Y" headquarters.

Plans are afoot for the formation of an inter-city Hockey League, comprising the "Y's" of Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto.

Rosen, gave toasts to their parents. The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. N. Kaplan, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Saiger, Mrs. Levene, Mrs. Solomon, Mrs. Atkins, of Toronto. Mr. B. S. Rosen, Detroit, Mich., Mr. Abe Rosen, Flint, Mich. Telegrams were read by Mr. Abe Rosen and N. Kaplan. Dancing. Seventeen dollars was donated for the immigrants due in Kitchener soon.

WHERE THE BEST TEA GROWS

The tea plant flourishes best on the well-drained side of a mountain in a country where there is plenty of moisture and a warm sun. Certain parts of Ceylon, India and Java are ideal for the growing of delicious tea, hence from these countries come the finest varieties. "SALADA" is a blend of the choicest qualities grown in these, the three most famous tea-growing countries in the world.

The sort of group to belong to is the Friedman Family Circle which recently held its fifteenth annual dinner in New York. No one could come who couldn't show himself to be a descendant of Pincus Friedman who lived in Poland in 1790, but there must be quite a few eligible to membership since three persons journeyed all the way from Hawaii to attend. We should like to be delegate from Toronto as one of the rules of the Circle is that "no Friedman can go broke" and it is backed up by a fund of $5,000, a sum sometimes heard of by column writers but rarely, if ever, actually seen.

When Senator William H. King, of Utah, member of the United States Senate Committee on Immigration, spoke to an East Side New York audience, the Ghetto showed its interest in immigration by sending more than twice as many people as the auditorium could hold. The theory of the superiority of the Nordic man was branded as an ethnological fiction on the occasion and the New York Tribune naively remarks that this theory had no supporters at this meeting. If there had been any bold enough to suggest the superiority of the Nordics over others as immigrants, the people on the outside of the hall who could not get in would have had sufficient entertainment without hearing Senator King. They could have been sure that every person they saw kicked out or thrown out was a supporter of this theory of Nordic superiority, and that if he hadn't been ejected by a Jew it was an Italian who helped clear the place.

We have eavesdropped on complaints made by people who placed news items between the editorial rollers of the REVIEW, and had them come out in print so mangled, in their opinion, as to defy recognition by the authors. Of course (we have been advised to bulletin) this is in conformity to that irreproachable style which makes the REVIEW the best news-edited English-Jewish paper extant. A subscription to the REVIEW (this is a paid advertisement) is like a weekly visit to the Jewish communities of Canada, only the news is more concise and succinct than you would get by going direct to the places. It all passes through the same process to make it tell you as much as possible as quickly as possible.

That's the way the paper itself handles its contributions and correspondence. This column, again, seeks after catholicity of style. We should rub to meet such contributors as "R" and "H," for example. With five or six a week like that all we would have to do would be to buy a paper knife and try and get our pay cheque.

The European Jewish student wants money and asks it of the Intercollegiate Menorah Society, but the Society has no money to give. The only way to take stock of what the Jewish student abroad needs is to say that there is nothing he does not need. He is lean, gaunt, hungry, and he shivers in the cold. The one thing that carries him along is the fever to learn. He can't work for money with which to keep himself going, for he is generally a foreigner and there is no work for him. The Italian Jewish Immigration Society says that in Italy (which is welcoming Jewish students, although in many other countries universities are trying to exclude Jews, there are about 300 Jewish students who have come there recently and it takes $200 a year to maintain each one. Make out your cheque to Menorah Student Relief Fund, S. W. Straus & Co., Treasurer, 167 West 13th St., New York City, if you want to help these students who starve while they study.

The wedding took place Sunday, March 16, at 5 o'clock at the Shaarey Zedek Synagogue, of Doris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Barlin, William Avenue, to Mr. Harry Jalsky, son of Mrs. and the late Mr. M. Jalsky, Burrows Avenue. Rev. H. J. Samuel officiated. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, entered the Synagogue to the strains of the Wedding March played by the orchestra, wearing a sleeveless gown of white georgette embroidered in pearls, the front and back of the skirt accordeon pleated, and trimmed with circlets of ostrich tips. Her veil of tulle, arranged in cap fashion, was embroidered in blue bird design. She carried a bouquet of roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Anne Barlin, sister of the bride, was maid of honour, and wore a sleeveless gown of peach georgette, the skirt designed with several rows of frills of the same material worn over a slip of silver cloth. She wore a bandeau of silver leaves in her hair and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. Miss Bella Onenson and Miss Jeanne Simons were bridesmaids, the former wearing rose-shot satin, long-waisted, caught in front with a cabochon of the same material from which hung steamers of narrow black ribbon. A bandeau of silver leaves adorned her hair, and she carried a bouquet of Richmond roses. Miss Simons wore mauve canton crepe, the skirt being designed with back and front accordeon-pleated panels. A bandeau of rose buds of the same material formed her head-dress, and she carried a bouquet of Richmond roses. Miss Gertrude Barlin and Miss Bessie Kassie, sister and cousin of the bride, were flower girls, the former wearing orchid silk, fashioned with a low waist line and finished with a girdle of rosettes made of the same material. The latter wore white satin trimmed with a lace collar, rosettes of the same material forming the girdle and finishing the edge of the bodice. They both carried baskets of carnations. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Philip Yessiem, Mr. Harry Stoller and Mr. Louis Barlin. After the ceremony a reception for about two hundred guests was held in the new Talmud Torah, which was decorated with spring blossoms for the occasion. The bridal table was centred with a three-storey wedding cake and many vases of cut flowers. An orchestra supplied music for dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Jalsky will reside at 438 Burrows Avenue. Mrs. M. Jalsky, mother of the groom, wore black silk, heavily beaded, and black hat. Mrs. I. Yanstock, sister of the groom, wore black georgette crepe, draped at one side and caught

Joe Morris and Flo Campbell talk aviation. Their airship is inflated with laughing gas and their little skit is called "Avi-Ate-Her." Monsieur Alphonse has a novelty in "Creations."

"Lovers' Lane" is the name Arthur and Morton Havel have selected for their revue, but the Havel boys' game is fun. Assisting them are Helen Lockhart, Inez Foster and Beth Chaplin. Sampson and Douglas are seen in a farcical skit called "Wit and Harmony."

Vera Michelena and Fred Hildebrand, co-stars in many musical comedies, including "Take It From Me," will be one of the headline features at Shea's on March 31, in "All For Vera." Halsey K. Mohrn will assist at the piano. Lloyd Ibach's entertainers will present Kendall Capps, dancer, and Allen Quirk, saxophone virtuoso, in "Steps and Tunes."

RUSSIA GRANTED MANY PRIVILEGES TO J.D.C. SAYS ROSENBERG

New York (J.T.A.)—Some idea of the spirit of co-operation which may reasonably be expected from the Russian Government in connection with the Crimean colonization project, is had from a statement made by James N. Rosenberg, vice-chairman of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, supplementing the statement made by Mr. Rosenberg a few days ago. The statement outlines the agreement made in December, 1922, between the Russian Government and the Joint Distribution Committee as follows:

"The J.D.C. may select the districts in which it will operate . . .

"The J.D.C. has the right to set up its own organization in the field. It may . . . cooperate with other institutions and organizations legally existing in Russia . . .

"The J.D.C. may bring such personnel as may be necessary. This personnel shall be guaranteed the necessary freedom and protection while in Russia . . .

"The Russian Government will provide members of this personnel with . . . safe conduct . . . to facilitate their entry into and exit from Russia . . .

"The J.D.C. has complete freedom in the selection of its local personnel. On delivery by the J.D.C. of its supplies at the Russian ports . . . the Russian Government will bear all further costs, such as discharge, handling and transportation to interior base points . . .

"The Russian Government will at its own expense provide the necessary storage for J.D.C. supplies at interior base points . . .

"In moving and storing of supplies, the Russian Government will give the J.D.C. the same priority over all other traffic as they give their own relief supplies . . .

"The Russian Government will, at its own expense, provide the J.D.C. with the use of railway, motor, water or other transportation for the movement of relief supplies and of personnel traveling on business purposes . . .

"The Russian Government will, at its own expense, furnish the J.D.C. the necessary offices, garages, storerooms, etc., for the transaction of J.D.C. business, and when available, heat, light, and water for same. It will take proper measures to secure residential quarters for the personnel of the J.D.C. . . . All such premises shall be free from requisition . . .

"The Russian Government will, at its own expense, give the J.D.C. the right to use existing radio, telegraph, telephone, cable, post and couriers in Russia . . .

"The J.D.C. will be supplied, at the expense of the Russian Government, with the necessary gasoline and oil for its motor transportation etc., etc."

THE POSITION OF THE ALLIANCE SCHOOLS IN TURKEY—STATEMENT BY THE ALLIANCE

Paris (J.T.A. Mail Service).—The Alliance Israelite Universelle in a statement to the J.T.A. office on the position of the Alliance schools in Turkey, writes:

The various measures which have been taken by the Turkish Government affecting the private schools in Turkey have caused much difficulty to the schools of the Alliance in that country.

1. Friday is now the compulsory rest day, and as Saturday is strictly observed in the Alliance schools the pupils are compelled to keep away from school two days in the week, which is prejudicial to their studies.

2. All the teachers must be of Ottoman nationality.

3. Instruction in the Turkish language must be given by Moslem teachers, to the exclusion of teachers belonging to the Jewish or Christian denominations. In consequence we are compelled to dismiss all non-Moslem teachers.

4. Our schools are not allowed to choose their Turkish teachers; these are appointed by the Government, which also fixes their salaries. The salaries have to be met by the schools.

The effect of these measures, above all the last, is to increase the expense of the Alliance schools, as a result of which their very existence is menaced.

CONGRESSMAN LA GUARDIA ATTACKS FORD FOR ANTI-SEMITISM

Says Motor Magnate Is Unfit to Control Muscle Shoals

Washington (J.T.A.)—The anti-Semitism of Henry Ford was denounced by Congressman Fiorella La Guardia on the floor of the House of Representatives Thursday during the debate on Ford's offer for Muscle Shoals. Congressman La Guardia launched a bitter attack on the Detroit motor magnate and pointing out Ford's unfitness, incompetency undertaking, which would be of so great importance to the Government in time of war.

Mr. La Guardia asserted that this concession would make Ford the industrial king of America and when another Congressman made the charge that there was hatred against Ford, the New York legislator delivered an unsparing denunciation of Ford.

"The only man who has hatred in his heart is Henry Ford, based on his ignorance of history, literature and religion," he exclaimed. "Henry Ford has done more owing to his bigoted hatred to create strife and hatred in this country among the races, than any man in the United States. The wealth and ignorance of Henry Ford combined has made it possible for vicious men to carry on a nefarious warfare against the Jews, not only of America but of the whole world. It has been said and I can understand how this vicious, inhuman, unChristian campaign reached the other side and its results we see in the pogroms of 1919 and 1920 in parts of Europe. Deny that if you can! The gentleman suggested hatred and I had to tell you where there was hatred."

ACTIONS COMMITTEE IN HEATED DEBATE OVER BUDGET QUESTION

London (J.T.A.)—The discussion of the Jewish Agency, begun yesterday at the sitting of the Greater Actions Committee of the World Zionist Organization, which is meeting in London, has resolved itself into a heated debate over the fixing of the annual budget. Three plans have been advanced, one of which would delegate to the Jewish Council for Palestine the right to fix the budget, subject to the approval of the Zionist Congress; the second plan leaves it to the Congress to stipulate a minimum budget subject to the necessary supplementation by the Council, and the third plan is that the budget should be fixed after joint consideration by the Council and the Congress.

Deputy Isaac Gruenbaum, of Warsaw, a member of the Polish Sejm and a delegate from Poland to the Greater Actions Committee, is strongly against transferring to the Council the right to fix the budget, while on the other hand Schmarya Levin and Dr. Friwel favour a compromise, whereby both parties will approve the budget.

The sitting Thursday closed an hour past midnight after Deputy Gruenbaum had spoken enthusiastically for about two hours, advancing the argument that the Zionist Organization would lose control of the reconstruction work in Palestine with a transfer of the power to fix the budget. Schmarya Levin insisted on full support of Dr. Weizmann, insisting on the necessity for a broader basis even to the extent of sacrificing the work in the Diaspora.

After the conclusion of the debate on the Jewish Agency, the Greater Actions Committee will take up the resignation of Dr. Soloweitchik.

KING HUSSEIN IS PROCLAIMED CALIPH BY ARAB MOSLEMS

Jerusalem (J.T.A.)—King Hussein of Hedjas has been proclaimed Caliph by the Moslems of Transjordania, Palestine, Mesopotamia and Hedjas. The Hedjas ruler has accepted the Caliphate, an honour which he has long sought and in the attainment of which he tried to enlist the support of the British Government. A conference of representatives of all Arab States has been called for March 15 and will convene at Koweit on the Persian Gulf. The outstanding question of Moslems the world over, the Caliphate, will be discussed at the conference, when ratification of King Hussein as Caliph is expected. The whole Arabian Peninsula and the Mohammedans of India and other countries will probably follow suit.

ROTHSCHILD REFUSES INVITATION TO VISIT PALESTINE, MAIL REPORTS

London (J.T.A.)—Baron Edmond de Rothschild, although in Egypt, has refused an invitation from Palestinian Zionists to visit Palestine, according to a dispatch in the London Daily Express, which declares that this action on the part of Baron de Rothschild means that he is dissatisfied with the work of the Zionists and wishes to snub Zionism. Because of the anti-Zionist attitude of the Express, which has been so often manifested in the past, it was said in local Zionist circles that not much importance can be attached to the report.

was allowed to be held at night. Court sessions opened after the morning sacrifice and closed at sunset with the last evening sacrifice (see Legislation Criminelle du Talmud, by I. J. M. Rabinowitz; also Mishna, San. IV; 1 Tal. Sanhedrin 80b; Maimonides Sanhedrin 3:1).

According to the New Testament account, Jesus was struck by one of the servants while at the palace of Caiaphas in the presence of the Judges without receiving from them a rebuke and a sentence for felonious assault. This, too, could not have happened in a Jewish court.

We are told, too, that the decision "he is guilty of death" was rendered by the judges of the Sanhedrin unanimously. Such a decision, according to Jewish law, is a reason for setting the prisoner free, because as the Talmud explains, a unanimous decision rendered in a case as the New Testament describes it, constitutes not a trial, but a conspiracy. (Yal. Sanhedrin 17a Maimonides, San. 9-1...

The Gospels state, too, that when the High Priest saw that the witnesses had all failed, he turned to Jesus and exhorted him to confess. This is in contradiction to the rabbinic principle of jurisprudence, "that no man can incriminate himself" (En Odom mesim azmo rosho). One's confession could not be used as evidence against him.

In the Apostles' Creed, endorsed by most of the Christian Churches, which is the oldest legacy of Christianity, the blame for the shedding of the innocent blood of Jesus is put on Pontius Pilate, while the Jews are not even mentioned. The Apostles' Creed in question reads as follows:

"I believe in God, the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ, His only Son our Lord, who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead and buried," etc. Why were the Jews not mentioned if they were really concerned in his crucifixion?

The Roman historian Tacitus, who undoubtedly had before him the original records and therefore was able to place the responsibility at the door of the real perpetrator, states in his Annals (XX, 44), "Jesus, called Christ, was crucified by Pilate for promoting a rebellion among the Jews."

Here is a testament from classical antiquity to substantiate the document found by the French archaeologists.

We trust that the evidence presented above from Jewish and non-Jewish sources are conclusive. For the sake of the truth and a better relationship between Jew and Christian, it is time that Christians stopped believing and teaching that the Jews crucified their Saviour.
